

Postdoctoral Research Position for 2 years at the Max Weber Stiftung - India Branch Office (IBO) in New Delhi. Pay will be in keeping with the current rules of the German embassy in India.

The Max Weber Stiftung - India Branch Office (IBO) invites applications from postdoctoral scholars for the position of a Junior Research Associate for 2 years to be based at the IBO in New Delhi. The candidate is expected to contribute to the international research network “Bilderfahrzeuge (Image Vehicles): Aby Warburg’s Legacy and the Future of Iconology”, supported by the German Ministry of Education and Research, and realized in a collaboration of the Warburg Institute, London, with German partner institutions (see list below). The objective of this project is to explore the migration of images, objects, and ideas in a broad historical and geographical perspective. In particular, it seeks to provide a contribution to the history of images which is based on Aby Warburg’s approach and method, rethinking them in the light of new interdisciplinary, international scholarship. For further information on the research network see <https://iconology.hypotheses.org/>.

The position in Delhi will be part of a sub-project on Indian / South East Asian art histories and cultural heritage studies, directed by Gerhard Wolf. Projects, concentrating on the 17th to 21th century, with a focus on visual and media studies, the transformation and relocation of images or artefacts across time, space and media in a broader cultural or transcultural perspective are especially welcome.

The suitable candidate will hold a PhD degree in art history, history, media studies or related fields and have some years of research experience, ideally in international research groups or networks.

This is a full-time position and the salary is approx. 80,000 INR per month plus Annual Bonus, Employee Provident Fund and medical benefits.

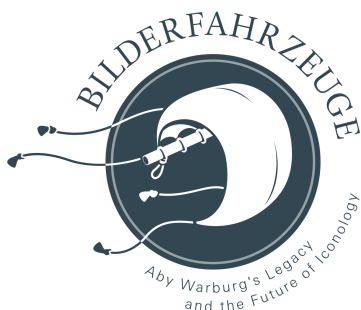

Please apply electronically in one pdf.-document with cover letter, CV, copy of PhD degree, project description (max. 4 pages), a writing sample and names of two referees to Prof. Dr. Gerhard Wolf (dirwolf@khi.fi.it) by 20 November 2018.

Start date: 1 January 2019

We particularly welcome applications from women as we are working towards increasing the number of women in academic positions. Among equally qualified applicants women will be preferred for appointment. As far as possible, the IBO allows for flexible working hours. Candidates registered as disabled will receive preferential treatment throughout the application process.
